About the workshop

The pressure to get value for money from public services has never been greater. The Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development reports that global activity has proven resilient, but Governments face mounting fiscal challenges from the rising cost of debt, and rising spending pressures from ageing populations, climate change, defence and the need to finance new reforms. The challenge for every manager is to decide what services to prioritise for its citizens and to deliver cost savings at the same time. How can public service managers deliver strong results in such circumstances?

This workshop focuses on the practical steps needed to maximise organisational cost-effectiveness - how we can drive performance improvements and deliver cost-savings at the same time. In particular, we explore how performance frameworks can be used to raise standards, budget setting and monitoring, how to identify and deliver cost-savings and the governance arrangements needed to oversee progress. Whether you are a team manager, executive leader or a politician, we all need to be confident that our organisations are delivering as much as they can within the resources available.

Who is the workshop for?

We have designed the workshop specifically for public sector organisations - central, state and local government bodies – as well as parastatals and NGOs.

It will be especially beneficial for senior managers:

- Responsible for maintaining or introducing performance management
- Involved in business planning, corporate performance, reform projects and governance issues
- Needing guidance on value for money
- Responsible for organisational change management programmes.

The workshop will also be of interest to people working for organisations involved in governance, audit, evaluation, and civil service reform policy. International development donors and consultants will also find the programme valuable in understanding current responses to the challenges that organisations face.

How participants will benefit

You will be able to:

- Understand performance management and budget setting in its organisational context
- Apply the concept of value for money to programmes and other activities
- Experience developments in good practice and lessons learned from the UK and other countries
- Share your own experiences of managing and implementing performance management systems and budgetary control with other participants
- Explore how these developments may be introduced and/or implemented in your organisation.

What the workshop will cover

The workshop will include briefings, discussion sessions and practical case study material, to examine good practice. It aims to be highly interactive and you are encouraged to: share your experiences with other participants; debate the potential added value of applying some of the features of models used in the UK; and consider skills and resources required to develop a framework for organisational performance management and budgetary control.

Workshop Director

The Workshop Director will be Dr Phil Gibby.

Phil has in-depth experience in performance and financial management within the public sector. He is a qualified accountant, a former Director of Value for Money in the UK National Audit Office and has considerable experience in working with local authorities to build financial resilience and maintain performance standards. He understands the challenges of having to meet performance targets with limited resources when bound by public sector rules and having to operate in a political environment. Phil provides consultancy advice and guidance to a range of central and local government organisations, as well as NGOs.

How to apply
