About the workshop

Public services may be delivered within widely differing contexts but everywhere we face a similar challenge in maintaining integrity and ethical conduct among all those in public life, whether elected representatives or appointed officials. From 'quiet corruption' which damages public trust and service delivery, through to 'grand corruption' which distorts a country's economy, there is a need to develop effective tools to tackle these problems, which have tended to grow worse in recent years. Increasingly it is recognised that anti-corruption efforts need to cut across institutions and address the full chain of activities and this programme will concentrate on prevention, through enhanced legislation, increased accountability and effective deterrence mechanisms and detection, as well as through regulatory, monitoring and oversight activities.

The workshop will aim to help you to develop and introduce practical mechanisms for establishing, promoting and sustaining an ethical infrastructure in the public life of your own country, to explore processes for detecting unethical behaviour and corrupt acts, including audit, risk management and oversight arrangements.

Who is the workshop for?

This workshop is designed for:

- Parliamentarians
- Senior policy makers and managers in the public sector
- Presidential or special advisers
- Local government officials
- Vigilance officers
- Investigators
- Risk managers
- People responsible for detecting and prosecuting financial crimes
- Representatives from civil society organisations
- All those with responsibility for or a special interest in ethics, anti-corruption and good governance.

It will be relevant for people working at national, regional, local or organisational level.

How participants will benefit

The workshop will enable you to:

- Enhance your understanding of ways of establishing, embedding, communicating and upholding core values
- Identify areas of risk and how these have evolved
- Develop the legal infrastructure necessary to reduce opportunities for misconduct
- Analyse systems for dealing with conflicts of interest
- Consider how to create the environment within which transparency and accountability can more readily be improved
- Understand mechanisms for detecting corruption and unethical behaviour.

What the workshop will cover

The workshop will cover the following main components:

- Identifying core values and the methods by which they can inform behaviour
- Developing structures, systems, legal and administrative procedures to prevent wrongdoing
- Putting in place systems to detect and report wrongdoing.

The workshop will include seminar sessions, discussions and case studies. It has been designed to be flexible so that it can be adjusted wherever practicable to meet your requirements and those of your organisation.

You will be invited to give an informal presentation on issues relating to ethics and anti-corruption initiatives from your own country.
